

THE WOLVES OF LENINSKY PROSPEKT

SARAH ARMSTRONG

'A mesmerising, evocative novel in which characterisation and narrative tension are in perfect balance.' -BARRY FORSHAW

KEY SELLING POINTS

- Perfect for fans of William Boyd's Restless and Kate Atkinson's Transcription
- Brilliantly evokes the claustrophobia, fear and hope of 1970s communist Russia
- The first in the Moscow Wolves series

ABOUT THE BOOK

You'd know if you were a spy. Wouldn't you?

Rebellious Martha escapes bleak 1970s England for a fresh start in Moscow. She falls in love with the city but ignores the rules of being a diplomat's wife, where every move is monitored and one mistake can cost everything.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Sarah lives in Essex with her husband and four children. Her short stories have been published in magazines and anthologies, and she teaches creative writing for the Open University.

PRAISE FOR THE WOLVES OF LENINSKY PROSPEKT

'A beautifully detailed corrective to the kiss-kiss bang-bang of far too many spy novels.' -The Irish Times

'A highly effective, and often disquieting, study of human beings being alienated and remoulded by a climate of constant surveillance, threats and manipulation.' -The Herald

'A fascinating account of life in Soviet Russia... it's the tiny details seen from the young heroine's point of view that impress.' -The Sunday Times Crime Club

'A terrific novel of loyalties and love.' -Katherine Stansfield

'I was as captivated by the story as Martha was with Moscow. A smart, acerbic, thought provoking read.' -Elizabeth Haynes

'Armstrong evokes a Moscow that is both magical and oppressive, and has created a young heroine who is foolish, inquisitive and aching lonely.' -Heather Richardson
