

The Zoo

Jamie Mollart

ABOUT THIS BOOK

Advertising director James Marlowe puts in long alcohol and cocaine fuelled hours, creating a new campaign for an international bank. But even James can't keep up the pace. As his hectic life disintegrates, he begins to despise his client, the corporate world, and himself.

Then suddenly it's all over.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Jamie Mollart runs his own advertising company, and has won awards for marketing. Over the years he has been widely published in magazines, been a guest on some well-respected podcasts and blogs, and Patrick Neate called him 'quite a writer' on the Book Slam podcast. He is married and lives in Leicestershire with his wife and cat.

PRAISE FOR THE ZOO

'A grippingly dark and ultimately moving story about exploitation, destruction and the possibility of redemption.' Alison Moore

'A book I read quickly and avidly.' New Books Magazine

'Dark and relentless in its bleak portrayal of modern day consumerism and the effects we all ignore.' We Love This Book

'One of those rare books that you have to read a second time the moment you reach the end – no small feat for a debut novel. This could well be the next Bret Easton Ellis.'

Staff recommendation, Waterstones Leicester

'A truly exceptional debut novel.' Book Trust
